

Giuseppina Panebianco

Giuseppina Panebianco is full professor of Criminal law at University of Messina (Italy).

Author of numerous publications, especially on the topics of juvenile criminal law and organised crime.

Teachings in the degree courses in Law: Criminal law; Juvenile criminal law; Comparative criminal law.

Teaching in the postgraduate courses: Criminal law at the “School of specialization for the Legal Professions” of the University of Messina.

Member of the Research team related to the project entitled “Nuevos retos y reformas pendientes de la justicia penal de menores”, funded by the Spain Ministry of Science and Innovation (P.I.: Prof. Sergi Cardenal Montraveta; Prof. Silvia Fernández Bautist).

Referee for prestigious scientific reviews (“La Legislazione penale”; "Ordine internazionale e diritti umani"; "Giurisprudenza italiana"; "Giustizia").

Additional positions: Member of the Academic Board of the PhD school in Legal sciences at University of Messina; Managing Board Member of the European Center of Criminal Law of Catania; Member of the University Centre for training and research in European law entitled “Centre of European Law S. Pugliatti”; Delegate to Library on behalf of Law Department Director at Messina University.

Awards: “Young Researchers Award” for the scientific production in 2005 (Issued in 2008 by the University of Messina); Additional reward compensation, for the years 2017 and 2018, in relation to additional commitments in teaching, research and management activities.

